SENTENCED FOR
AUTO ACCIDENTBucyrus Driver of Car That Hit Three Children Is Found Guilty.Sentence of $100 and costs, 30
days in the Marion county jail
and suspension of driving rights
for one year was meted out in municipal court yesterday afternoon by Judge Dexter Hazen to Robert Neely, 24, of Bucyrus,
driver of a car which struck two
small children and a 16-year-old girl in an accident July 10 on North Main street.Neely was given a hearing on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.
The 30-day jail sentence was suspended by Judge Hazen following a conference with Acting City Solicitor R. M. Wilhelm and his assistant, Robert A. Kelly.
The suspension was given because Neely is employed in vital
defense work here, Judge Hazen
said.Neely paid the fine and costs
of approximately $18 and was released.Yesterday morning in a municipal court hearing on a charge of intoxication against Charles Smith, 26, of Bucyrus, companion
in the Neely car, the charge was dismissed. Both young men are colored.The victims, Marsha Lee, 4,
and Thomas, 3, children of Mr.
and Mrs. Harry W. Schroats of 870 North Main street, and Mary Elizabeth Bowman, 16, daughter of Mrs. Mary Ruth Bowman of 1015 North Main street are improving. The boy still is in City hospital, but his condition is reported to be good. For several days after the accident the three
were in critical condition and the attending physician was particularly concerned about the Bowman girl.Family Present Neely's wife and small son and his parents and a sister were in the audience for yesterday afternoon's proceeding which began about 1:20 p. m. Sentence was passed at 2:55.The court feels that under the evidence the state of Ohio has proved him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt," Judge Hazen
said before he ordered Neely to stand
and be sentenced.Witnesses in the afternoon were State Patrolmen Vern Herbert
and James Gibbs; Desk Sergeant Clyde Hardin of the Marion police department.

Carnival Grounds.Gordon Cearley of Big Cabin, Okla., and Arnold Patton, 23, of Pikeville, Ky., were arrested
Thursday night on the Keystone carnival grounds on North Prospect street for allegedly operating a gambling device. They were released under $50 each to appear in municipal court.Police Chief William E. Marks
said that the department consistently has been in connection
with a device similar to a roulette wheel pointer. He labeled
the gambling as a "five and ten"
practice in which merchandise awards were given the winners.

Signed as Teacher, Coach
at University High
in Columbus.William O. "Bill" Williams, a member of the Harding High school faculty for the last seven
years and head football coach
since 1938, today announced his resignation to accept a position on the faculty of the University High school, Ohio State university, Columbus.He presented his resignation
this morning to Supt. E. E. Holt,
who in turn will present it to the board of education at its regular monthly meeting Monday.School officials today were unable to say who would succeed
Williams. His resignation leaves
three vacancies in the public school athletic setup. George Niemi, former assistant coach under Williams, has resigned to enlist in the navy. He is scheduled to begin training in the physical education division Aug. 4 at Norfolk, Va. Ralph Simpson, former Central Junior High school football coach, entered the same
branch of the service several months ago.To Teach Science
In his new position Williams
will teach sciences in addition
to coaching football and basketball. He will be assisted in the laboratory by graduate students
working on higher degrees in physical education. He will begin his new duties Oct. 1.The school operates as a division of the college of education
of the university. It is widely known in educational circles
throughout the country as a teacher-training institute. Likewise,
many new educational theories
are tested in the school by the university and the state department of education before being recommended for general use in the Ohio school system.Williams told a reporter today
that the new position will afford
him an opportunity to keep a close contact with teaching and coaching in addition to giving
him a chance to attend school.
During the time he is on the job, he will be in Columbus.

Ohio attorney general, was the principal speaker and talks were given by Congressman Frederick
C. Smith and other candidates.French Crow, chairman of the Marion County Executive committee, served as master of ceremonies for the meeting, held in the open. The talks were amplified over a loud speaker.Congressman Smith sketched the history of the Republican party in the city and county during the last few years and stated that under Republican administrations finances and services of the city of Marion had been placed on a sound basis. He also praised the achievements of the state administration
under the leadership of Governor
Bricker and expressed the belief
he would be reelected in November.Cites Record
"The record speaks for itself,"
Congressman Smith said in referring to the national government.
He described the Republican party
as "standing on the firmest possible ground for achieving complete victory in this war in the shortest possible time with a loss of the least number of men."Referring to the more than 220
million dollars requested by the
administration for defense, the Republicans in congress, to the man,
voted for every dollar for our own
army, navy and air force, he declared. In stating his position on the lend-lease request Congressman Smith said he felt it is his duty to his country to supply our own forces with the weapons they
so sorely needed before any
weapons of war were given away
to other nations.Speaks of Peace Terms
"When I hear from the soldiers
and sailors who did the fighting,
the kind of peace they think America needs, I may possibly be in a position to say what I believe the peace ought to be," the congressman said in answering
the question where will the Re-

By HALLIE HOUCK

MARION'S first service man of World War II to return home after seeing action, arrived here this morning from service on the U. S. plane carrier Yorktown, which was put out of action in the battle of Midway.He is Jack Dunford, 20, son of Mrs. George Reilly of 634 East Center street.A ship's fitter, second class, he's seeing his mother for the first time in two years and after 102 consecutive days at sea.Young Dunford is nonchalant about all he's been through, he wants into action again and the hell of battles hasn't dimmed his liking for the navy and the sea.Anxious To Get Back
"Sure I want to get back," he told a reporter this morning. "I didn't get killed, why wouldn't I want to go back?"Because the navy is strict
about its censorship and because he himself naturally is inclined to be reticent about his part in
some of the navy's greatest battles in its history, Jack doesn't give out too specific details of what happened in the battle of Midway or any of the other engagements in which his ship participated before it was put out of action by the Japs.The Yorktown, he said, was damaged in the battle of the Coral Sea, but after two days at PearlHarbor for repairs, took to the sea again. The men knew they were going into another battle.How does it feel to know you're heading into the jaws of death?
Admits Nervousness
"You're a little nervous, a little excited, but you want to get into action," is Jack's reaction.
Asked if there was any time when
he wished he hadn't joined the navy he said firmly, "No, never."The battle of Midway, he recalled, began June 4 and the carrier Yorktown was bringing up the rear. About 12:30 in the afternoon waves of Jap dive
bombers began coming Gunners

ects in Marion receiving approval
of the war production board
mounted today to 82 living units,
some of them single houses and
others doubles.This word came today from A.
L. Guckert, district director for the federal housing authority with offices in Columbus. Mr. Guckert
also handles all priorities applications for house construction materials in the area that includes Marion.As Marion's housing construction program prepared to expand
rapidly, Mr. Guckert called attention to the fact that Marion originally was allotted only 100 new houses for defense workers, and
that the applications approved to date leave only 18 living units in the quota. He said a number of applications have been filed, possibly enough to exhaust the quota
if all are granted.Possible Next Moves
When asked what Marion would do for additional new houses after the quota is used up, Mr. Guckert cited two possibilities: (1) since
war workers' needs in Marion are going to be far greater than the original quota provided for, the city may get an additional quota
but this is uncertain; (2) the federal government, through its national housing agency, may come into Marion and build enough temporary housing facilities to meet
the needs rather than permit private builders to try to handle the housing problem.The list of private housing projects listed by Mr. Guckert as having been approved by the war
production board, which regulates the flow of critical materials
into housing projects all over the country, follows:Leslie Adams—10 one-family
units and 3 to 2-family units.

Carl Reiger—2 two-family units.

Following Mr. Guckert's announcement of the approved list,
Pat Dwyer, who received WPA approval on the largest single project in the list, announced today that the board's action virtually clears the way for construction of 21 double houses in the proposed Universal Cooler addition immediately north of the Universal Cooler Corp. plant.The double houses will be for rent, rather than for sale, and will be in the $10 to $15 a month rent
range. All will be five-room completely modern structures probably all frame, and all will be different in appearance, he said.The development is to be handled by the Universal Housing
Corp. owned by Mr. Dwyer, Mrs.

cost $160,000 and to provide about

Siberia Soon.By The Associated Press
British military quarters declared today that Japan had massed nearly 400,000 troops in Manchukuo opposite the 1,000-
mile Soviet frontier and said
"there is little doubt they are planning to attack."These quarters predicted that the Japanese would make at least three drives in an attempt to isolate the Siberian port of Vladiv-ostok, which lies only 700 miles
across the sea of Japan from Tokyo.August and September are the best months for campaigning in that area," the source said, "and

other spheres except the north Pacific indicates Siberia is their objective for the last half of 1942."Pacific Area Quiet
Aside from aerial operations
and a minor Japanese land thrust
toward the allied outpost of Port Moresby, in New Guinea, the whole Far Pacific theater has been completely quiescent for weeks.In Australia, Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur's headquarters reported
the biggest outburst of aerial warfare since the Coral Sea battle,
with American airmen destroying
nine out of 49 Japanese raiders
over Port Darwin, setting another enemy transport aflame off New Guinea and shooting up the transport's destroyer escort.Allied fighters tore into the attacking force of 27 heavy bombers and 22 escorting Zero fighters
over Port Darwin, knocking down
seven of the bombers and two fighters at a cost of only one destroyer.

ARMY BOARD
RESUMES TRIAL
OF 8 AGENTSJustices Hold Military Group
Appointed by President Is Lawfully Constituted.By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 31—The
seven alleged Nazi saboteurs just
today in their effort to escape
jurisdiction of President Roosevelt's military commission by appeal to the supreme court.Chief Justice Stone announced
that the court denied the prisoners' motion to file writs of habeas corpus.Only seven of the eight accused saboteurs sought the writ.
The court's opinion found:1. That the charges preferred against petitioners on which they are being tried by a military commission appointed by the order of the President on July 2, 1942, allege an offense or offenses which the President is authorized to order before a military commission.2. That the military commission was lawfully constituted.3. That petitioners are held in lawful custody, for trial before
the military commission, and have
not shown cause for being discharged by writ of habeas corpus.The opinion then said:
"The motions for leave to file
petitions for writ of habeas corpus are denied."The orders of the district court
are affirmed. The mandates are directed to issue forthwith."The court's announcement explained.The court has fully considered the questions raised in these cases and thoroughly argued at
the bar, and has reached its conclusion upon them.Trial Is Resumed
"It now announces its decision
and enters its judgment in each case, in advance of the preparation of a full opinion which necessarily will require a considerable period of time for its preparation and which, when prepared,
will be filed with the clerk."The military trial of the eight
accused saboteurs resumed for final argument this morning without waiting to hear whether the supreme court would interfere
with the proceedings.Principals of both the prosecution and defense entered the
boarded-in enclosure of the trial
area in the justice building
shortly before 10 a. m., eastern
war time—two hours before the supreme court was scheduled to meet again on the appeal of seven
of the suspects, who seek a civil court trial.Attorney General Biddle of the prosecution and Captain William Hummel of defense counsel told reporters that they expected to begin final arguments of the secret military trial immediately
and that there was no conflict
of opinion about the propriety of proceeding without waiting for the supreme court.The right supreme court justices weighing the case—Justice Murphy disqualified himself because of his present service in the army—went into a two-hour conference immediately after two days of arguments had been completed yesterday and this circumstance led to the expectation of a speedy decision. In adjourning the special term until today, however,
the court made no announcement
as to when its ruling would be issued.Two Questions Before Court
Before the court were two questions, submitted in the prisoners'
briefs: "1. May the petitioners (six of whom are enemy aliens) maintain a civil action in the federal court?"

DRIVER KILLED NEAR CAREY

Findlay Man Meets Death as Truck Is Wrecked and Burned.

Special to The Star
CAREY, O., July 31.—Edward Albert Kitchen, 54, of Findlay, was killed instantly and his demolished truck burned in an accident yesterday at 3 p. m. a mile and a quarter north of here on State Route 509.

According to Wyandot County Deputy Sheriff E. W. Mulholland of Carey, Mr. Kitchen, driving south in a heavy dump truck driven by James Long of Findlay, in passing over the driveway of the A. B. Ruffing farm on the east side of the road Mr. Kitchen apparently lost control of the truck and it careened across the highway and into a large tree.

The tree was uprooted and the motor of the truck was hurled approximately 15 feet from the demolished vehicle. A few seconds later Mr. Long and another truck driver extricated Mr. Kitchen's body and the truck caught fire and burned.

Mr. Kitchen suffered a crushed chest and fractured skull, both legs and his right arm were broken and his face was lacerated.

Mr. Kitchen owned the truck and was working for C. E. Edgington & Son of Findlay, who have the contract for road repair job near McClellenville. Both he and Mr. Long were hauling stone from the Carey Stone quarry to the Bristol ambulance from Carey, moved Mr. Kitchen's body to the Miller funeral home in Findlay, where the funeral will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. Burial will be made in Maple Grove cemetery at Findlay.

Mr. Kitchen was born at Ottawa, O., on April 17, 1888 and had lived in Findlay for the last 23 years. Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Ruth Bauer Kitchen, a daughter, Marilyn, at home, two sisters, Mrs. Chester Zent and Mrs. Corn Grable of Findlay and brother, Donald Kitchen of Mansfield.

hearing and he was one of those present at yesterday's conference with Mayor Green, at which action was taken to enlarge Columbus Jail.

Following the conference Mayor Green said that he had inquired about the permit holders in Columbus about 1:30, will be held Tuesday night. He warned that it "will be inadvisable" for permit holders to go to the jail to know what is to be done to clean up the vice situation immediately.

Commenting on the meeting, "All legitimate operators will want to attend this meeting to learn what we are doing to try to clean up."

To Follow Up Drive

He said he wanted a list of the permit holders so he can check up and see how many are interested enough in this critical problem to attend this meeting.

Col. Robert Wynn, chief of Columbus vice squad, told Colonel Baldinger that he has been handicapped by the lack of men since the furloughing of 128 policemen in a drastic cut of municipal expenses. Colonel Baldinger replied: "I don't know where you are going to get the money to pay those policemen who have been cut off from their jobs, but you've got to get them back and you've got to get something to pay them with."

Dr. Nelson C. Dysart, city health commissioner, said he is not permitted, under the law to compel clinical examinations of women until they are arrested on a specific moral charge. He said he cannot stick his neck out against the advice of the legal department.

Hits Liquor

Colonel Baldinger replied: "We've got to start sticking our necks out. I've been sticking my neck out for the last 20 years."

He said that, "in our business of teaching young men to fly, liquor is just as bad as prostitution."

One man was arrested by the vice squad yesterday and charged with running a house of prostitution and a 22-year-old woman was arrested and charged with engaging in prostitution. Police also seized a pinball machine and punchboards which they said were on display in the lobby of a downtown hotel.

The arrests were the first such since the army threatened to bring in federal officers if Columbus police did not ban prostitutes.

DECENTRALIZE DIRECTION OF ORDNANCE PRODUCTION

Field Head of Ammunition Plants
To Be In St. Louis.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 31.—A new move to decentralize direction of the manufacture of ammunition and other ordnance material for the army was announced today by the war department.

Effective tomorrow, a field director of ammunition plants will be located at St. Louis, Mo. Directors will be appointed in other important production centers.

Nearly 70 officers and 150 civilians will be transferred from headquarters of the chief of ordnance to Philadelphia in moving to that city the production section of the small arms branch, and the gage facilities section.

department: Ivan Sharrock of Bucyrus, a truck driver; Alfred H. Wilson, who operates a grocery at 1014 North Main street; and Wayne McCurdy Jr. of Pleasant Acres, who works at a rent barn stand near the scene of the accident.

Both state patrolmen said the driver of the car which struck the truck was not at the scene when they arrived about 10 minutes after the accident. Mr. Sharrock said he saw the car approaching and knew the driver to be Neely, but that he was too concerned with the children after the accident to pay attention to the occupants of the car.

Identified by Witness

Defendant testimony against Neely was given by McCurdy. He said he did not see the accident but that he saw Neely, whom he identified in the courtroom, running back of the root beer stand crying "Call the law!" McCurdy said that Neely continued running back toward a group of house trailers behind the root beer stand. In reply to a question from E. J. Myers, defense attorney, McCurdy said he did not know whether Neely went to McCurdy's house or not. McCurdy said he judged Neely was running in a normal fashion and that from the scene of the accident he would have had to pass a filling station before he got to the root beer stand and that he was headed toward the edge of the city.

Mr. Wilson, whose store the young people had left a few seconds before the accident, said he heard his wife scream, "Oh, my God, the kids have been hurt," and that he ran out the front door in time to see the right wheels of the car pass over the 10-year-old girl. He said that at no time did he see Neely at the scene of the accident.

Mr. Sharrock, who said he knew Neely only as "Bob," testified that when Neely's car stopped Smith jumped out and he heard Smith tell "Bob" that he should have been permitted to drive.

Patrolmen's Account

Patrolman Gibbs testified that he and Patrolman Heibert arrived at the scene of the accident about 7:05 and that they directed traffic while Herbert made the investigation. He said he did not see Neely at the scene and that he first saw him between 12:30 and 1 a. m. July 31. Neely, according to the patrolman, was so excited he didn't know where he went. Neely told the patrolman that he had been gambling and drinking late afternoon.

"I didn't say anything about his own child about the same age," asked Mr. Myers, to which the patrolman replied "No."

Patrolman Heibert testified that he was at the scene about 11:30 and that he could not locate Neely afterwards in cruising over the north side of Marion and finally went to Bucyrus to contact Bucyrus police and send out a dispatch for Neely. About midnight he was notified that the man sought was in city jail. At the jail, the patrolman testified, Neely said that when the three young people stepped in front of his car he tried to stop and that when he saw the three being carried on the front of the car he became excited, got out of the car and ran away.

Information About Car

The patrolman said the right information as to the owner of the car came from Columbus, although Smith had said he thought it belonged to Neely. The check on the license plate also revealed that it was issued for another car, the patrolman stated.

Acting City Solicitor R. M. Wilhelm asked the patrolman as to Smith's condition and was told that Smith was intoxicated.

The solicitor brought out that there were two patrolmen at the scene. If Neely had been in search of some one to notify as to the accident, and that the defendant did not call police headquarters.

Desk Sergeant Hardin said

that about 11 on the night of the accident several colored men came to the police station and one of them, Ollis Lavette, a city employee who lives in the northeast side of Marion, said that Neely was the man wanted in connection with the accident on North Main street. Neely neither denied nor affirmed the statement, Hardin said.

Question of Record Raised

Several times during the hearing Mr. Myers, who with J. D. Williamson, Marion attorney, defended Neely and Smith, spoke of the "record" being made of the case.

Apparently puzzled by this reference, Solicitor Wilhelm arose and explained that the state of Ohio was making no record, that the municipal court does not have a stenographer, and that the record of proceedings being made by Robert Hedges, Marion county common pleas court stenographer, was made at the request of the parents of the children. Judge Hazen said he was not interested in the record being taken.

William E. Martin of the firm of Martin & Reed, which will represent the parents in any civil actions which may be forthcoming from the accident, said the record was strictly the property of the parents and would not be sold to the attorneys for the defense.

"We have no objection to your having the record, it's all right with us," Solicitor Wilhelm said, "but you'll have to take it up with Martin & Reed who will represent the parents in civil action."

RAF FIGHTERS OVER NAZI CHANNEL PORTS

Planes Return Night Attacks
by German Bombers.

By The Associated Press
LONDON, July 31.—British fighters swept the Channel in the direction of Boulogne this morning in a continuation of day-long raids on the occupied French coast after a night of scattered German bombing attacks upon Britain.

The planes also were active over the Channel during the forenoon and heavy anti-aircraft fire was audible for several minutes on the outskirts of London, which had two quick alarms during the night—the fifth and sixth of the week.

The German night attacks were centered largely on the industrial Midlands.

(The Berlin radio said strong German bombing formations again raided Birmingham during the night.)

Eight of the raiders were shot down by British defenses and a ninth was destroyed over its base in occupied France by an RAF fighter, a communiqué said.

British light naval forces engaged in three successful skirmishes with German boats, planes and shore guns in the North Sea and English channel overnight, the admiralty announced today.

One British patrol early this morning intercepted five German invaders off Ummidun. The Netherlands, setting fire to one and scoring repeated hits on others in a 10-minute fight, the admiralty said.

Ingersoll Enters Army as Volunteer Today

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, July 31.—Ralph Ingersoll, editor of the newspaper PM, was inducted into the army today as a volunteer. He will report at Camp Upton on Long Island tomorrow.

The 41-year-old editor enlisted after his local draft board refused to change his 1-A classification following an appeal by Marshall Field, owner of PM, in Ingersoll's behalf.

New "Blackout" Lamp Developed at G. E. Plant

By The Associated Press
SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 31.—General Electric company engineers announced today perfection of a "blackout" street light that sheds light equal to about one-sixteenth of the illumination of a full moon.

A. F. Dickerson, head of the General Electric light division, said the lights will be "completely invisible" to enemy fliers, and will be "just enough, no more, to keep a person on his homeward path."

They are also safe from flying shell fragments and debris, he added. They contain no glass, "only a small amount of plastics and cast non."

Myers said, explaining with a half-smile that he had been under the misapprehension that the record of proceedings was being taken as a part of court procedure.

Judge Hazen ordered a five-minute adjournment and when court was resumed, neither side had further evidence to offer and the judge proceeded to pronounce sentence.

Motion Overruled

Motion by the defense attorneys that the charge against Neely be dismissed on the grounds that the affidavit stated no offense or crime, was overruled by the judge.

At the opening of the hearing the judge acceded to the solicitor's motion for a separation of witnesses and they were taken to another room by the bailiff, H. F. LeMaster.

In his new position he will have the rating of an instructor in the university.

While at Harding Williams has conducted courses in biology in addition to serving as head football and baseball coach and assistant basketball coach.

During the four years he has served as head coach, the football Presidents have played 36 games, winning 27, losing six and tying three. In 1939, his first year as head coach, the Harding eleven lost five games, a 16-0 loss to Bucyrus in 1940 was Williams' last defeat.

Conference Champs

In each of the last three years, the Presidents have won North Central Ohio conference titles. In 1939 and 1941 the Prexies capped undisputed first place and in 1940 shared the title with Bucyrus and Shelby.

In the spring of 1938 Williams organized the school's first baseball team in 20 years. Harding baseball success hit an all-time high last spring when the Presidents finished third in the state Class A tournament, losing to Greenfield McClain in a semi-final contest after tripping Middletown in a first round game.

In State Tourney

The Presidents gained the state tourney play by virtue of a 10-1 win over Toledo Libbey in a sectional final game at Findlay after winning over Wapakoneta and Lima Central in district play.

Williams has assisted D. N. Bohrer, Harding athletic director and head basketball coach, as assistant basketball coach. Several reserve teams under the direction of Williams finished high in the N. C. O. reserves cake standings.

He joined the Harding faculty in 1935 after teaching for five years at Rising Sun, O., where he had been athletic director. He was graduated in 1930 from Bluffton college, Bluffton, O., with the degree of bachelor of arts and has since taken considerable graduate work at Ohio State university and Mt. Union college. WAR PRODUCTION HALTS AT PONTIAC AUTO PLANT

CIO, AFL Dispute Shuts Down Factory.

By The Associated Press
PONTIAC, Mich., July 31.—War production was halted today at the Pontiac motor division of General Motors Corp. here after pickets turned away day shift employees, and a CIO union leader said the employees were joining a mass demonstration in connection with a CIO-AFL organizational dispute over retail food store workers.

Tucker P. Smith, regional director of the United Wholesale, Retail and Department Store Employees (CIO), said the strikers responded to an appeal to join a parade designed to convince state and federal authorities that AFL "blockade" of food deliveries to retail stores should be lifted.

Members of the Retail Clerks' Union (AFL) have been seeking to organize employees of independent food stores in the Pontiac area, and have collected the aid of AFL teamsters in shutting off deliveries to all stores whose owners have not signed AFL contracts.

Red Marshal Timoshenko, who's continuing to give ground south of Rostov on the lower Don, has lightened his defenses considerably along the great crescent-shaped battle front during the past two days, out whether it represents Russian strength or a weakening of the Nazi drive is yet clear.

We ought to know soon, however, where the balance of power lies. The conflict now has reached a stage when marked weakness on either side will begin to show.

Nazis Call on Reserves

The Communist party newspaper Pravda of Moscow asserts that Germany is throwing its last resources into the offensive, and adds that "the enemy is not so strong as he appears to some panic-mongers." Pravda's information has been pretty accurate in the past, and if its present estimate is correct, the Reds certainly need not despair of holding the invaders.

We get another interesting view from Russian Major General Zhuravlev, a keen military commentator for the Moscow news. He declares "the day is approaching when the Red army will deliver a counter-blow" and adds that while the German army is still capable of scoring short-lived successes in separate sections of the front, it "will inevitably be smashed."

Head of Union Hits Recorded Music on Radio.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, July 31.—The manufacture of "canned music" by 132,000 union players ceases at midnight tonight by order of President James C. Petrillo of the AFL-American Federation of Musicians.

On the eve of his ban on making recordings for radio and other public uses, which he says comprises 85 percent of the music heard in the United States and Canada, Petrillo broke a long action.

"Our order is not changed," he told newsmen in making public a letter to Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the federal communications commission, who has said he would look into the recording matter.

Music on Radio.

Petrillo charged that the federal government was "protecting" radio stations, advertising agencies and record makers in a "combination" against his union.

"In so far as I am personally concerned," he wrote, "and as long as I am president of the AFM, I shall encourage such action (the recording ban) on the part of musicians until such time as these people who are getting rich on our services while our people get no money see fit to employ members of the American Federation of Musicians."

U. S. Officers in London

Meanwhile, the arrival in London of four high-ranking U. S. army air force officers, coupled with the debarkation of a big new contingent of Canadian troops in the British Isles, stirred fresh speculation that an allied invasion of western Europe might be near.

Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky was reported to have told a session of parliament that the time had come for the allies to open a second front; moreover, Sir Stafford Cripps, Prime Minister Churchill's spokesman in the house of commons, asserted yesterday that Britain had military "intentions," which, however, he refused to disclose.

The London Telegraph commented editorially:

"When even the village idiot could see that an allied invasion must be in the cards, there can be no harm in making the enemy jump about it."

"But in these circumstances, silence, even in parliament, is surely golden."

Thousands of soldiers and hundreds of air force ground crews arrived in the big new Canadian overseas contingent, with tanks predominating.

The high American officers in cluded Brig. Gen. Frank O'D. Hunter, commander of American fighting plane forces in the European theater, and Brig. Gen. Asa N. Duncan, air force chief of staff.

CONGRESS CAMPAIGN IN OHIO SPOTLIGHT

Overshadow Democratic Contest for Gubernatorial Post.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 31—The fight against renomination of one-time isolationist congressmen apparently is overshadowing other contests, including the Democratic gubernatorial race, in Ohio's primary campaign.

Four of these congressional battles, involving the seats of two Republicans and two Democrats, stand out in an otherwise drab political campaign in which all candidates pledge all-out support of the war effort.

Probably the most spectacular is that being waged between Democratic Rep. Martin L. Sweeney of the 20th (Cleveland) district and Michael A. Feigan, a former minority leader in the state house of representatives.

Sweeney Fight Tough

Sweeney, one of the most zealous isolationists in congress before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, is fighting the toughest battle of his varied political career.

Sweeney not only is vigorously opposed by Cleveland newspapers but also the Democratic Cuyahoga county organization headed by Ray T. Miller, former mayor of Cleveland.

Mayor Frank Lausche of Cleveland, not on the best of terms with the Miller organization, threw his support to Feigan. Sweeney virtually is fighting with his back to the wall.

While Democratic Rep. Robert Crosser of the 21st (Cleveland) district also is defending his isolationist record against organization-endorsed John Gillespie, the fight against Crosser is less heated.

Next to the Sweeney-Feigan contest is the battle between Republican Rep. Charles H. Elston of the 12th (Cincinnati) district and former mayor Victor Heintz, who resigned from congress to fight in the first World war.

Democratic congressional candidates as well as Heintz are lambasting Elston for his pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist stand.

Vorys Has Battle

The fourth contest in which isolationism is the chief issue, that between Republican Rep. John M. Vorys of the 12th (Columbus) district and Melville D. Frank, a former city councilman.

Republican Rep. Cliff Cleveland of the 5th district and J. Harry McGregor of the 17th also are defending their congressional votes against fortification of Guam in the Pacific and other isolationist stands.

Cleveland's chief opponent in a four-cornered race is William L. Mahan of Defiance, while McGregor is opposed by Oliver H. Dockery Jr. of Newark, a retired army colonel.

British Dissatisfaction With War Effort Found; Second Front Advocated

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 31 — Growing public dissatisfaction in Britain with the government's conduct of the war, and a strong tide of sentiment for opening a second front are shown in the results of latest surveys by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

In June, before the fall of Tobruk and before the Nazis started their heavy drive in Russia, 57 per cent of all voters questioned by the British Institute expressed themselves satisfied with the government's conduct of the war. Today the latest poll shows only 41 per cent satisfied.

This change came simultaneously with a sharp drop in Prime Minister Churchill's personal popularity. As reported last week, 78 per cent indicated approval of Churchill today as compared to 86 per cent in June.

Commenting on the changed attitude, the London News Chronicle says editorially that deep-seated causes of "disquiet and dissatisfaction" will remain until drastic "improvements have been made in military, scientific and political direction and coordination of the war effort."

It also lays some of the dissatisfaction to the failure to open a second front. Second Front Attitude

With widespread mass meetings throughout England calling for a second front, the British Institute has conducted a scientific measurement of the amount of second-front sentiment.

The results indicate that while about one voter in every four is undecided, the majority in favor of risking a second front this year is substantial and has increased sharply since June. At that time 59 per cent felt an invasion this summer would be worth the cost.

The attitude today is as follows:

"Should the Allies try to invade Europe this year?"
Yes	60%
No	12%
Undecided	28%

By contrast with the results of a similar survey in the United States, it appears that second-front sentiment is stronger in Britain than it is here.

A recent test of American sentiment by the American Institute of Public Opinion showed the following:

Canadian public opinion, as measured by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, is closely similar to that in the United States. The Canadian Institute found 46 per cent in a recent poll favoring the opening of a second front now, as compared to the 48 per cent in the United States.

Attempt Attack Now 48%
Wait till we are stronger 34%
Undecided 18%

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Cox

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
Call from Joyce
JACK FENNER swung his little sedan into the driveway, drove up under the porte-cochere, and stopped there.
"We might as well use the society entrance," he said.
Murdoch eyed him glumly. "I don't like this much."
"You've got the wrong attitude," Fenner said, opening the door. "You were married to her once and now—"
"That's got nothing to do with it," Murdoch said. "I just don't like the idea of trying to bully her when I don't think she knows anything about the case anyway."
"Look," Fenner became pointedly patient. "This dame has got a definite hook-up with Raeburn, right? And your wife can put Raeburn in the chair practically singlehanded. If Raeburn finds that out—and he wouldn't have to be very smart if he can read the papers and put two and two together—he's going to hope something happens to her, right?"
"Oh, quiet!" Murdoch said. "Get out. We'll talk to her."
The butler looked doubtful when he opened the door.
"Mrs. Losado is engaged at the moment," he said.
"We'll wait," Fenner said and pushed in.
Murdoch followed. "Just say that Mr. Murdoch would like to see her. Tell her I won't keep her long."
He had been moving along the short corridor as he spoke and was now nearly to the main hall. The butler shrugged with his eyes brows and withdrew, and presently Hester appeared.
"Why, Kent, now, nice—"
She stopped abruptly, seeing Fenner and the smile faded. She looked questioningly from one to the other, and Murdoch made the introduction.
"I've heard a lot about you," Fenner said. "And all of it's true."
Hester looked him up and down, with some hauteur at first, and then, with his grin, with moist lips.
"Would that be a compliment?" "It would."
A smile touched her glance and she turned to Murdoch. "John Nason's here. Would you rather wait or—"
"Nason?" Murdoch hesitated, finding the name an injection which stimulated many dormant thoughts. "No. He might be interested in this too."
John Nason rose when they entered the drawing room, blond, square-faced and powerful-looking. Beneath the bushy brows his gray eyes examined the trio in one swift glance and then became expressionless.
Hester—Anxer
She sat down and the others followed.
"The police haven't been here, have they?" Murdoch asked.
"They telephoned," Hester said. "I told them they could come after lunch."
"Do you know why they called?"
"About Perry Clarke. I presume."
Murdoch glanced at Fenner, knowing that if he did not continue the detective would.
"Have you seen Raeburn?" "Yes."
"Have you been in touch with him at all?"
Hester's glance slid over to Nason and came back. "I'm afraid I don't understand," she said. "I've just told you."
"A man by the name of Hardacker was murdered last night," Murdoch said. "Apparently by the same person who killed Perry Clarke. Hardacker was a private detective and he was working for Raeburn. The way it looks now, Raeburn is the one who killed him—and Clarke."
Hester's mantle of graciousness had slipped away.
"And how," she asked, her glance resentful, "does that concern me?"
"You know Raeburn," Murdoch said.
"And we thought you might have some line on him," Fenner added.
Hester looked him up and down.
"Is that why you came?" she snapped. "Because you think I'm—I'm harboring a murderer?"
Fenner was unimpressed. "It's like this," he said, and began to tell her what had happened.
Watching the lawyer as Fenner continued, he concentrated, remembering things about Nason that had come to light over the past two years, reviewing the business activities that had been newsworthy enough to warrant a paragraph or two in the Courier-Herald. Suddenly it was aware that not only was there a possible connection between Nason's field of business and Hester's story.

Germany's Price for Rostov

WORST possible effect of losing Rostov is likely to be the crippling of Russia's war machinery during the rest of the summer and fall, raising the probability of defeat before winter. This is, as the Russians admit, the gravest moment of the war for them; it clearly is one of the gravest moments of the war for the anti-Axis coalition.

Rostov when captured by the Germans before remained in their hands only a few weeks before the beginning of the successful Russian counter-attacks that dislodged the Nazis from the advance positions they reached before winter settled down last November. It was lost to the Russians only for a short time during the off-season.

Besides being a key city in the oil supply line from the Caucasus north, Rostov is the center of an important industrial and farming area. With its capture and the siege of Stalingrad, tremendous damage is done to the equipment and food prospects for the Russian armies. It is unlikely that there can be a successful counter attack this time; the obvious plan of the German strategists this year is to bring the war with Russia to a conclusion before winter.

Sole hope now is the possibility that Germany may have paid too high a price for Rostov—the possibility that has been mentioned in connection with Kharkov and Sevastopol. The Nazi war aim still is destruction of Russia's armies, not the occupation of territory. If Rostov cannot be exploited to that end—if its seizure merely hurts but does not cripple Soviet fighting power—there is still a chance for a turn in the tide of war. Otherwise, the prospect is as bleak as it seems to be; there are no mitigating circumstances.

Five Months To Go

PUBLIC confusion about air raid precautions in Ohio is cleared up to some extent by Director Ralph Stone's announcement of a statewide blackout within the next five months. Mr. Stone is the newly appointed acting defense director succeeding Courtney Burton.

A statewide blackout would entail bringing all Ohio communities to approximately the same point of preparedness. It would set up a statewide standard. While a blackout in itself is far from a guarantee of adequate civilian defense, it does require a certain amount of preliminary work which, when it has been done, insures at least a minimum level of protection.

Chief source of misunderstanding in air raid precaution is ignorance about the effect to be accomplished. In what is known as an "activated" area, for example, it is assumed that attack is imminent; everything is done accordingly. Ohioans, in an unactivated area, have heard about precautions on the Atlantic coast and naturally have wondered why they were lagging so far behind. The answer is that theoretical danger from attack decreases in ratio to distance from the coast and Ohio is not considered to be in imminent danger. Nevertheless, its preparations are proceeding—too slowly, many feel—against the day when either for practice or actual reasons it will be an activated area. If Director Stone can bring all the state's communities under the blackout deadline wire in five months, that much at least will have been done toward preparedness.

Situation in a Nutshell

FEW wartime subjects are cut to the experts' order, like the second front. They can expand on it endlessly.

To a man they agree that it can't be done. The technical complications are too great. It's an open-and-shut case.

But also to a man the people who aren't experts but just average in the amount of misinformation they possess agree that unless the thing the experts say can't be done is done the experts will have had their last fling. If it is too risky to invade Europe while Germany is busy with Russia, it will be still riskier if Germany defeats Russia and is able to give its undivided attention to preventive measures.

Necessity: Mother of Saving

THE practicality of tin salvage in the areas where it is being done suggests that the offspring of necessity isn't invention, but salvage. The means of recovering tin has been known for a long time, but until war shortages created the right circumstances the tin can continued to be so much net waste.

No doubt when the war is over, most of the salvage operations now coming into being will be abandoned, and emphasis again will be on the problem of getting rid of everything as quickly as possible in order to create a market for more. This, like salvage operations, perhaps will be official policy, part of the plan for promoting better international relations based on exchange of essential commodities. If it happens, something will have been taken away—the ineffable joy of prudence—the satisfaction that comes to the string saver when he realizes that sooner or later his ball of string will be put to some use, perhaps in the next war. Certainly any family that had salvaged the tin of its cans for the last 20 years would be entitled to a Congressional Medal and its picture in the newsreels right now.

News Behind the News

Limitations on What Can Be Done with Night Bombings Learned from Experience.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The British are making a study out of Germany's night bombing campaign, but they are not yet ready to place certain definite conclusions on what can be done with it.

The importance of certain American operations at the failure to develop these grand aerial assaults later and further, has cast some reflection on British efficiency. It is not that.

The British started their bombing campaign the night of May 30-31, with a thousand-plane attack on Cologne. They went back at Essen and the Ruhr with a thousand planes two nights later, but could not duplicate these attacks again for nearly three weeks.

They hit Bremen with a thousand planes on the night of June 25, and then skipped three weeks more before marshaling 700 for an attack on Duisburg, July 13-14. Two weeks later they put 800 over Hamburg on two successive nights (dropping 175,000 incendiaries and using 4,000-ton bombs).

Not inefficiency, but insurmountable obstacles of weather and operations forced the long intervals of comparatively quiet nights when only a few squadrons were able to indulge in this new type of warfare.

Need Moonlight
The British found, for instance, that their losses from collisions among their own planes were greater than from enemy action, on moonless nights. This meant they could efficiently hurl thousand-plane raids at Germany only half of the month, when the moon permitted, and even in that half of the month only when there were no heavy clouds or rain to obscure vision.

Summer night raiding is further restricted by the fact that only four hours of darkness is to be expected in the latitude of Germany. Industrial cities (which are on the latitude of Labrador). This condition, however, will improve constantly as winter draws near, and eases the complicated traffic problems of putting as many as a thousand ships into the air over a single city at different levels and in consecutive attacking squadrons.

When you figure that the Germans have hundreds of industrial cities spread all through Europe, over a much wider area than the industry of England, and face all other practical limitations, you will fully the difficulty of wiping out Germany by this means. It is easy to talk of mustering the 5,000 bombers necessary for sustained super bombing attacks, but quite another thing to get a thousand of them in the air half the time.

There is no question about the damage done when they hit. The British have accurate reports of damage done, these having seeped not through Switzerland from the accounts of neutral consuls (largely Latin-American) in the German cities which have been attacked, and from travelers and German newspapers reaching neutral ground. No neutral report is necessary, however.

Heavy Damage
Everyone knows the damage the Germans did in Britain and they never put into the air more than 300 planes at night. The Nazis leveled Coventry in a few nights, never using a third as many bombers as the British can occasionally put into the air now.

Thus while this aerial bottleneck, sometimes called the second front (first in this column) can be accounted a substantial success so far, there are few who believe it will be able to take the place of a second front by land invasion, no matter how greatly it is expanded.

British losses have averaged slightly less than five percent, which makes raiding entirely successful from that standpoint, but it is difficult to believe super-bombing can do more than soften Germany for invasion.

The new 4,000-lb. bombs, supposed to destroy an entire city block, were first used, experimentally at Duisburg, July 13-14, with such success they will be employed on an increasingly large scale as the plan of attack expands this fall.

Americans participating so far, are not fighting as units. They merely fill in British squadrons. Six or eight participated in the first daylight raid on Holland last week and another similar size group this week helped out in an attack on France.

Further investigation reveals they flew B-24s and B-29s. Douglas bombers only because the necessity for coherent squadron maneuvering required them to use ships of the same type as the British.

Admiral Leahy's Role

He's Certainly To Be More Than Leg-Man for President.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, July 31.—There may be a good deal more to the appointment of Admiral William D. Leahy as President Roosevelt's personal "chief of staff" than meets the eye.

Consider these factors:
(1) No President in the history of the nation has ever had a personal chief of staff, yet constitutionally every President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

(2) Many navy officers I have talked to consider Admiral Leahy the greatest naval strategist this country has developed.

(3) The talk has been going around that the United Nations might solve the problem of an overall commander-in-chief by designating President Roosevelt. (This, it is argued, would avoid jealousies between army and navy officers in this country and in allied nations. Of the four great international leaders, Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek, it is contended that Roosevelt is the only logical choice for such a post.)

(4) Close advisers to the President have said frankly, and the President has admitted, that he actually is taking a big part in the strategy of this war so far as the United States is concerned.

(5) The constant talk and mounting pressure for a second front in western Europe make it more imperative than ever that our army and navy leadership be correlated under a single command.

(6) The President has been pretty vague about just what Admiral Leahy's duties are to be, but made it pretty clear, by inference, that the admiral would do the leg work in gathering the facts and figures which will determine the President's decisions as to our strategic moves.

More Than Leg Man

Give those six points a second thought and the conclusions must be that there is something more in the wind than the mere designation of a Presidential leg man. The army and navy have chiefs of staff, but when the commander-in-chief of BOTH forces appoints one of his own and when that man has the well-earned reputation and respect that Admiral Leahy has, you can be certain that he is something more than just another "liaison officer."

Washington opinion generally is that no matter what the real reason, the President could have done no better than pick lean, leathery-faced, 67-year-old Admiral Leahy for the job.

An Annapolis man, Admiral Leahy has a record of 46 years in the navy, a couple more as governor of Puerto Rico and a year as ambassador to Unoccupied France—a post that demanded much more than just a good diplomat and one which, by all reports, he filled to complete satisfaction of those who have guided our foreign policies in these difficult times.

Really a Sea-Dog

Heavy-browed, graying, and gruff, the admiral is every inch a sea-dog. His friends most frequently describe him, however, by such phrases as "old legion," "master of detail," "organizational genius."

If Admiral Leahy's conclusions and decisions do have any bearing on army activity, it will be one of those ironies. When, as a Hampton, Va., lad finishing high school, he had decided on his career, he tried to get into West Point. He couldn't. There was no opening. Annapolis and the navy were his second choice.

Time To Learn About Soviet Russia

Names of Socialist Republics Now Make News.

TRY these names on the quiz program, experts: Belorussian, Kazakh, Kirghiz, Abkhazian and Daghestan. What are they?

They are names of Soviet Socialist Republics and autonomous states in Russia. Although the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has been a byword for 20 years, few Americans ever heard the names of the republics. There are 16 of them.

Now that the war has reached the Russian Caucasus, National Geographic society predicts that the names of dwarf nations and pint-size republics whose names have been buried in footnotes for years, will emerge. The Caucasus stretches over an area slightly smaller than that of Montana, yet its 137,180 square miles contain 16 separate units and part of another.

Russia proper, known politically as Russian Soviet Federative Socialist Republic, lies north of the Caucasus mountains, which stretch east and west from the Caspian sea on the east to the Black sea on the west side of the isthmus. On the south side of the mountains, comprising what is known as Transcaucasia, are three small Union republics—Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan.

The Soviet Union's principle of self-government for minorities has necessitated many subdivisions to allow for variations of speech, religion and race. Each unit has its representative in the U. S. S. R.'s council of nationalities which has a fixed number of representatives from each political unit to balance the delegates apportioned according to population, as in the congress of the United States.

SOME of these subdivisions are the size of Rhode Island, and others are larger than Denmark or Iceland. "An Atlas of the U. S. S. R." by Jasper H. Stenbridge, published by Oxford University Press, explains the political organization of Soviet Russia as follows:

"The Union was established as a result of the revolution of November 1917 and is a socialist state of workers and peasants. There is universal military service. The land is the common property of the people, as too are all means of production and transport. All citizens over 18 years of age are enfranchised. The Communist party, as the only legal party, holds the key positions in the administration of the of the head of the state in other countries. It issues edicts between sessions of the supreme soviet, ratifies treaties, appoints ambassadors, etc. Its actions have to be approved by the supreme soviet for ratification. The council of people's commissars, or cabinet, is appointed by the supreme soviet. Its chairman is Stalin."

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Sunday, July 31, 1932. Adolf Hitler's push for complete power in Germany was temporarily halted when he and his party followers failed to get control of the reichstag in a nationwide election. They doubled their strength over the furies of four years ago but fell far short of a clear majority, receiving little more than one-third of the total vote.

At Munich Hitler issued a statement to his followers in which he called the election "our greatest success" and pledged them to "carry on the fight with unabated vigor." Newspaper comment in Berlin showed moderates and leftists jubilant. The news report read: "All agreed that the Hitler movement had reached its peak."

The Young People's Missionary society of Emanuel's Lutheran church held its annual picnic at Harrison Smith park, Upper Sandusky. Contributing to the program were Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Laubner, L. M. Renger, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Schilling, Carl Campbell, Mr. David Renger and Mrs. Horace Troy.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Keis, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haskell and family and Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bradshaw and son of Marion were among friends and relatives attending a surprise dinner party given Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wood at their home near Richmond in celebration of their second wedding anniversary.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Frederick of Mary street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, July 31, 1922.

A news dispatch from Berlin reported that political leaders there declared the days of the Versailles treaty to terms of the nation's industrial crisis resulting from the coal mine and railroad strikes were near an end. It was believed that both sides in the railroad strike were ready to accept the President's peace proposals.

Miss Pauline B. Meily and Edwin P. King, both of Marion, were united in marriage at the Wesley M. E. parsonage by the pastor, Dr. J. D. Darling.

Members of President Harding's cabinet voiced confidence that the nation's industrial crisis resulting from the coal mine and railroad strikes were near an end. It was believed that both sides in the railroad strike were ready to accept the President's peace proposals.

Weeds Save Roads

By R. J. Scott Rhyming Slang

Australians Masters of Art: Origin Traced to Vagabonds Who Were Ex-lac from England.

By DAMON RUNYON

IN RESPONSE to several inquiries for additional information on rhyming slang, some of the words and phrases which have been traced to John Camden Horner's "The Rhyming Dictionary" published in London in 1864.

The words traced to rhyming slang, which is the substitution of words and sentences that rhyme with other words intended to be "kept secret," to a similar tribe of men then existing in London known as chaunters and patterers. The per of the origin was about one hundred years ago.

The chaunters and patterers, who numbered upward of 20,000 at one time, were vagabonds. The former would sing or chant political and humorous ballads, carols, ditty speeches and the like in the streets. This custom is still common in some of the hillbilly and coal mining regions of the United States.

The patterers corresponded to some extent to what are now known as pitchmen, selling grease-removing compounds, plating powders, and medicines and knock-knocks in the streets to the accompaniment of rapid fire gab. The chaunters and patterers considered themselves the aristocrats of the highways and a considerable cut above the costermongers.

BUT like the costermongers they had their own secret language, rhyming slang. I am told that it is now practically extinct in England. It was taken to Australia by ticket-of-leave men long ago and parts of it prevail in that country to such an extent that it has become identified with the Aussies, who have added considerably to it.

American fighters and managers who went to Australia some 20 or 30 years ago brought back fragments of the slang and our own linguists also put in numerous touches. Hence the once somewhat limited vocabulary of the original rhymers has become quite elaborate.

As Horner says, unlike nearly all other systems of cant or slang, the rhyming slang is not founded upon allegory "unless we except a few similes such as 'I'm all over' for boat, 'sorrowful tale' for three months in jail, 'artful dodger' for lodger and 'snake in the grass' for 'looking glass'."

An American switch on "sorrowful tale" is "moan and wail" meaning jail, which I think is most certainly allegorical and quite an improvement. However, I sense allegory in the original "ding dong," meaning a song, and in "elephant's trunk," which signifies a drunk. The beauty of the latter must be clear to anyone who has ever been the victim of a stew's fond embrace.

THE ORIGINAL rhyming slang for hat was "lean and fat" which in Australia became "tit for tat" or more briefly "tit tr." It requires an expert to cut the slang down to one word, which is the proper way of using it. For instance in the original, "three quarters of a peck" means, for some unfathomable reason, the neck, and this was expressed as just "three-quarters."

In the original, "round the houses" was trousers, which the Americans or Australians turned into "riggy-rowers." The old glossary gives both "daisy recruits" and "German flutes" for boots, but what I might call the modernized version uses "daisy roots" for the boots and "fiddle and flute" is a suit.

It all sounds somewhat cumbersome and ridiculous, but rhyming slang is nonetheless a fact in linguistic history, like the back slang of the English costermongers, which was pronounced backwards as if they were spelled backwards, or the pig latin of our own youth. Up-gay eye-bay ear-day eeder-gay or -lay is -they ime-lay. I will now repair to my shovel and broom, climb into the roses red, place the lump of lead on the weeping willow and plow the deep.

Stalingrad

By The Associated Press

Stalingrad, with a population of nearly half a million, is the nearest of the great Volga river ports to the Don, in the great bend of which, a battle that may decide Stalingrad's fate, perhaps even Russia's, now is raging.

The industrial city, known before the revolution as Tsaritsyn, extends along the west bank of the Volga, greatest river in European Russia, at the point nearest the big bend the Don river makes before turning back toward the Black sea.

Thus, with rail links across the 50 miles of steppes to the Don and with rail lines to Moscow and the Caucasus, Stalingrad became important as a trans-shipment center.

The guns which hold the city control the lower Volga, as it flows below sea level down to the Caspian inland sea.

Stalingrad, 230 miles northeast of Rostov, and 235 miles from Astrakhan at the Volga delta, was given its name because Premier Stalin held the town in the 1917 revolution and there organized supply services for the new-born Red army.

The general area has little rainfall and crops are good only along the Volga valley. Southward stretch sand dunes and salt steppes as far as the Caspian.

The Volga at Stalingrad is frozen only two to three months each year.

Fishing and milling are important industries, and the city's tractor factories were convertible into plants for war machinery.

Former Marion Man Among Rivals Of Long. Ham Fish in New York Primary

D. Fite in Campaign Involving Standing of Pre-Pearl Harbor Isolationists.

One of one of Marion's long-time opponents, William B. Fite, a member of the New York assembly and a political science professor at the State University of New York, is running for the 26th New York district in the primary election on July 31. Fite, who is a member of the National Institute of Public Affairs, is a former member of the Marion High School and a graduate of the college at Hillsdale, N. J., and attended Wellesley college in Massachusetts. She was a principal of Marion High School at one time and for many years taught mathematics in the high school.

There is one other member of the family living, Jay Fite, of Cleveland, who is retired after years in the wholesale hardware business. A sister, Miss Jeanette Fite, died years ago.

Father Former Merchant
Their father, Lemuel Fite was one of Marion's early and most respected citizens. A native of Trumbull county, he came here in 1837 and the following year married Louise Smiley of Shelby. He was one of the early produce merchants in the city. Prior to his death on Oct. 14, 1900, he devoted his time to large real estate interests. He was one of the founders of Central Christian church, and it was largely through his efforts that the church was built, according to history of the county.

Other members of the family were of the Baptist faith and were members of Trinity Baptist church. Fite was largely through the efforts of Miss Anna Fite that the present Baptist church on David street was started. It bears the Fite family name.

Other candidates in the New York congressional race for the Republican nomination are Augustus Bennett, a Newburgh lawyer, and Edward J. Bowen, a long-time political opponent of Fish. Comment on Campaign

Mr. Gallup in his article on the New York contest, wrote in part as follows:

"His (Fish's) campaign is highlighted by three of the most unusual factors within the memory of politicians.

"First, Fish is opposed by the President of the United States. Second, he is opposed by the titular head of his own party, Wendell Willkie. Third, he is opposed by the candidate who is most likely to head the Republican ticket in his state this November, Thomas E. Dewey.

LEBANON, O., July 31.—Five persons were killed and 25 others injured in a blast at the Ohio Powder plant here today.

The plant is located on the Ohio river and is one of the most important in the country. It is a major source of powder for the military and for civilian use.

The blast caused a large fire which spread to other parts of the plant. It is estimated that the damage to the plant is about $25,000.

Have YOU Joined the Army of the Thrifty?

The fun of unconsidered spur-of-the-moment buying, is a luxury of the past for us Americans. We replace it now with the deep satisfaction of wise planning, careful buying.

• We Americans don't buy anything we don't need. We buy nothing we don't need. We make everything last as long as possible. That is our part in the war effort. We must all join the Army of the Thrifty.

• And we, the patriotic merchants, will help you buy wisely... to make every penny count.

Galion Doctor Weds in University City, Mo.

Special to The Star
GALION, July 31.—Of interest to Galion friends is the recent marriage of Dr. Paul F. Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Barton, to Mary Margaret Manning, which took place at the Church of Christ the King, University City, Mo. The ceremony occurred last week and was performed with a single ring service by Rev. Fr. James Ryan.

Attending the bride was Jane Manning, her sister, while a classmate, Dr. Edward J. Becker, attended the bridegroom. Following the ceremony a reception was served to 50 guests at the Coronado hotel in St. Louis.

After a short wedding trip Dr. and Mrs. Barton returned to Galion to visit Dr. Barton's parents. On Saturday he will leave for Carlisle, Pa., to assume his duties as first lieutenant in the United States army. Dr. Barton was graduated from Galion High school and from the University of Dayton, then later received his medical degree from the St. Louis University School of Medicine. While there he was affiliated with Phi Beta Pi, national medical fraternity. For the past year he has been serving his internship at St. Louis County hospital, St. Louis. Mrs. Barton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Manning of University City, Mo., is a graduate of Fontbonne College for Women in St. Louis.

A post-nuptial bridal shower honored Mrs. Robert DeWitt, a recent bride, when members of the Galion nursery school parents held a picnic at Hulse park Thursday evening.

Twenty-five members were present for the supper which was in charge of Mrs. Angela Ventrone and Mrs. Tom Finney. Mrs. Sara Reagle, director, announced that at the meeting of the group to be held Thursday, Aug. 6, movies of the nursery school activities will be shown. Guest night will be observed at that time.

WAR BOND SALES INCREASE IN JULY

Federal Reserve Bank Reports Gain in District.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, July 31.—War bond sales spurted this month, the Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland reported today.

Surveying all seven postoffice sales in the fourth district—Ohio, Eastern Kentucky, Western Pennsylvania and the West Virginia Panhandle—the bank said:

"The July daily average was exceeded only by the January figure. Up to July 27 sales of series E bonds were $31,192,000 in contrast with $27,448,000 in the entire month of June.

Sales of F and G bonds also improved materially, totaling $28,000,000 up to July 27, compared with $18,133,000 in the preceding month and $39,000,000 in January when U. S. purchasers took their entire year's quota in effect at that time. Raising the limit on the amount of F and G bonds that may be purchased in any one calendar year to $100,000 of either or both from the $50,000 limit which prevailed in the first half of the year may have been responsible for the rise in the sale of those bonds."

It was from the latter that she went in 1935 to Wellesley to become that college's second youngest president.

THREE TRUCK DRIVERS FINED AT MARYSVILLE

Assessed Penalty For Refusing Patrolman's Order.

Special to The Star
MARYSVILLE, July 31.—Three drivers for Allen & Sharp, Columbus trucks, were fined $10 and costs each by Common Pleas Judge Richard Casperson here Thursday on charges of refusing the order of a state patrolman to drive on public scales to submit to weighing. They paid their fines and costs and were released.

Robert Paul, one of the three, was found guilty of the charge following a hearing in June. Loring Lewis and Fred Devol, all of Columbus, pleaded guilty when arraigned Thursday.

The men had been bound over to the grand jury by Justice Richard Thrall early this year. Prosecutor William L. Coleman took the case of Paul to the common pleas court on information rather than submit it to the grand jury. The case was intended to test out certain phases of the law. The men when arrested, stated that their employer had instructed them not to drive on scales if requested to do so by officers.

Marion Flier In Course Leading To Army Commission

Richard E. Parish of Marion is taking an aviation course at the Harrington Air Service station in Mansfield, an official army and navy aviation training base working toward an officer's rating in the army air corps. He enlisted in the service three weeks ago, and after at least eight weeks from the time of his entry at Mansfield will be transferred to another base for training for an indefinite period.

Parish has been an officer in the Civil Air Patrol here for some time, holding the rank of executive officer, and took up flying last September. He had had 125 hours in the air at the time he went to Mansfield. He was manager at the Parish Dairy Co. before enlisting. Mrs. Parish lives at 366 North Prospect street. One of 20 being trained there, 10 army men and 10 navy. Parish will be qualified for a non-combatant position such as liaison officer or aviation instructor. The training is a preferred course for which applicants must have a private pilot's license, at least two years of college education, two army recommendations and must pass the army air corps screening test and physical examination. PACIFIC ending plane. The Japanese formations were completely broken up in this allied performance, described by a headquarters communique as a piece of "brilliant interception."

The big raid upon the northern port came in the afternoon after a light, ineffective morning attack.

In other thrusts at Australia, nine high-flying Japanese bombers made the first attack of the war on Port Hedland, small freight port southwest of Broome, in western Australia, causing slight damage and one casualty, and made a futile, single-plane night

attack on Horn Island, in the Torres strait.

Blast Transport
Keeping up their own offensive operations, allied heavy bombers pounded on the destroyer-escorted Japanese transport 100 miles off Gona mission, Papua, and scored five direct hits, leaving the vessel spouting flames visible for 50 miles.

The transport, described by today's communique as a medium-sized cargo vessel, was the fifth enemy ship damaged or sunk before the Japanese invaded the Papuan peninsula last week.

From all yesterday's operations three allied planes were missing. For the first time in several days allied headquarters said there was no ground activity at Kokoda, inland village midway between Gona mission and the allied base at Port Moresby.

In China, Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters reported that the Japanese lost four bombers and three new Zero-type fighters under the guns of U. S. air force fighters when the enemy twice attempted to raid Hengyang airdrome yesterday.

Man Grabs Coin Changer Off City Bus, Lands in Jail

A middle-aged Marion man walked into considerable trouble this morning when he saw an empty city bus parked near the courthouse, saw the driver's money changing device mounted on the dashboard, and yielded to the temptation to take it—reportedly to buy refreshments at a downtown bar.

The outraged driver of the bus, who had left his vehicle parked for a moment while he went to a nearby store, had some measure of revenge by being able to help locate the man in the downtown district and take him to the Marion Rapid Transit Co. office where police were called to take the man into custody.

Bus company officials said the man readily admitted he had taken the money and even told them where they could find the discarded money-changer—in the Quarry street cemetery. Some of the stolen money had been spent before he was found.

The man was booked at police station today pending the possible filing of charges. The money-changer contained several dollars at the time of the theft. Part of the money was recovered.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Protective Food

WITH THE increase of our growing knowledge of the protective food and the deficiency diseases, the value of the use of liver in the diet becomes more and more apparent.

The protective foods include the vitamins, some of the minerals and quite a few others. Their particular function is that they are not used exactly as fuel or as tissue builders, as most of our food is, but they perform a sort of regulatory function over the absorption of the other foodstuffs and over their utilization by the tissues.

There is no better illustration than the now generally familiar action of liver in improving the condition of the blood and helping anemia. It does not do this because liver tissue actually enters into the formation of blood cells, but because it contains some chemicals which stimulate the cells in the bone marrow where blood is formed, to regular activity.

As a comparative instance, a substance called nicotinic acid was found by researchers conducted in 1937 to be a necessary part of the diet, in order to preserve perfect health. When it is not present, the skin becomes unhealthy and rough and scaly, and there is some disturbance of digestion and sometimes of the central nervous system.

Now it was further found, as in the case of liver, nicotinic acid does not actually enter into tissue building but, in the language of the scientists, "provides material for the building of co-enzymes used in tissue metabolism" or, in plain words, it "provides" substances that influence the cells to healthy activity. It is like a boss on a construction job; the boss does not lay any of the bricks but he keeps the gang that does lay the bricks pepped up.

In the regular progress of the study of any of the vitamins, the first step is to find that such and such bodily deficiencies result from the lack of the vitamin, and the second is to examine all the foods in the world to find out which ones contain the vitamin.

And to and behold, when the scientists went looking for nicotinic acid, liver led all the rest in concentrated amounts of it. Liver contains about 1.2 milligrams of nicotinic acid per gram of dried substance, while wheat germ contains about 0.05 and baker's yeast, the nearest competitor to liver, about 0.5 milligrams.

Along the same line, notice that vitamin D is found in concentrated form in cod liver oil. Later it was discovered that nearly any fish liver contains vitamin D in high concentration and certainly animal livers in general contain it to some degree.

Why does liver contain so many of these elements? Because the liver is the great storehouse of the body. The substance in liver which helps blood building is not formed in the liver but in the walls of the stomach and is brought to the liver for storage and sent out to the bone marrow day by day and hour by hour as needed.

Likewise with vitamin D. We all form vitamin D in the skin by the action of sunlight and it is carried to the liver for storage. It is not formed there, but carried there from the place of formation and sent out as needed.

I have by no means exhausted the list of substances that we know about which are stored in the liver and are necessary for health, and there must be many more waiting to be discovered. None of those known are destroyed by cooking. So teach your children to eat liver once a week.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

THE SCEPTER is extended, Junior, with a consoling "I'll let you talk again," took the receiver from her.

"Rod's out in the field with Jim," he said, and so I would have loved to speak to Rod's or-phaned nephew, I had so little time that I was almost relieved at his absence.

"I haven't time to wait for him," I told my young son. "Tell him I sent my love to him. Now please call Aunt Lillian and tell her I want to speak to her, but first ask Granzie to come to the telephone."

"Sure, I'll tell her first," he promised. "Here's Katie."

"O-h, Missis Graham, my darling Missis Graham," Katie wailed. "If you not come home soon, dey haf to put me in vun lo-o-onatic asylum. But I no dare stay now. Old voman catch me she fry my ears in oil. Yes, Fatih, you can talk. But Katie, she fly."

"I'll do my best," I told her as I turned to the telephone.

"I did not know whether to be glad or sorry when Junior answered the telephone. There is nothing in the world I love better to hear than the sound of my children's voices, but I dreaded telling the eager lad, who every day expects that I will be home the next, that my stay in the city must be prolonged."

"Oh Mother!" he greeted me with joy in his voice. "How soon will you be home?"

"I'll tell you presently," I said. But to my relief he did not hear me, so shrill was the clatter of Fatih's voice saying, "Me want to talk to Mamma. Me want to talk!"

"All right, Skeezicks," Junior said with loving indulgence. "Here, stand still and I'll hold the receiver to your ear. Now put your mouth close to this and speak up real loud."

Fatih obeys. She followed his instructions so literally that I was almost deafened by the yell which came over the wires.

"Mama!" she shrieked. "Mama! Talk!"

"Yes, darling, I hear you. Are you having a good time?"

She considered a second. "Zes: dood time," she admitted at last, then added hopefully: "Oo tummin' home, Mama?"

"Yes, darling, very soon. Where is Roderick?"

"Reddy?" she echoed, then carried to the liver for storage. It is not formed there, but carried there from the place of formation and sent out as needed.
